Identification of farmed fish

Note that, where possible, escaped farmed fish should be identified separately from wild fish.

Salmon of farmed origin may exhibit the following characteristics:

1. Deformed or shortened fins, especially the dorsal and tail fins
2. Deformed or shortened gill covers (may be only on one side)
3. Deformed or shortened snout
4. Heavy pigmentation, spots more numerous than are usual on a wild salmon

For the purposes of this return, if a salmon is to be classified as being of farmed origin it should exhibit 2 or more of the above features.
